Don't borrow your neighbors tool—he may loan them to you gracefully but deep down in his heart he rebels. And there is no need of borrowing anyway. Just phone us to send you what you want, or if you are living in the country drop in and see us the first time you are in town.

We're cranks about our goods—the quality is more important with us than the price. Many years experience retailing has taught us that people will remember the quality long after the price is forgotten.

ROSS STREET RED DEER

Farmers Co-Operative Ltd.

Report to Shareholders, Six Months Ending Dec. 31, 1912

The subscribed stock of the company as at 31st December, 1912, and at date was 775 shares of $10.00 each. The calls of 10 per cent paid to the 31st December amounted to $300.00, and $35.00 more had since been paid, making $445.00 of paid up capital to date. A balance sheet and statement of income and expenditure had been prepared and would be read to the meeting, showing property and assets, which included the property held by the company, all debts owing to the company and the bank credits of $3,504.27. The liabilities of the company amounted to $3047.15, and including the paid up capital, the outstanding cheques and, as it happened, owing to shipment of hogs to Merritt, and some cars of hay to Edmonton, a debtor balance to the Merchants Bank of Canada of $309.10. Remittances to balance this amount had in the ordinary course of business come in after the books were closed. The difference between the assets and liabilities showed a disposable balance of $547.12, which the directors had decided to deal with in the following manner: By paying a 5 per cent dividend to the subscribers who had paid their calls, to date, absorbing $22.25; by the allocation in stock of 14 per cent of the business done on the 5 per cent basis pro rata among the patrons of the company, requiring $411.88 (which sum would be transferred to capital account); and by the creation of a reserve fund of $112.99 (which represented the profit on the business done outright), making a total of $547.12.

There had been a business of approximately $32,377.00. The statement of income and expenditure showed what business had been done in the different farm products. $27,630.20 had been done in hogs alone as against $24,673.43 in the previous six months, showing an increase in that branch of the business of $2,956.77. There had been done an almost equal amount of business in hides in the two periods, but with the exception of $21.05 more done in wheat, there had been a considerable decrease in the amount of grain handled, owing to the depressed market prices.

A small amount of oats, etc., had been placed locally for the farmers who cared to do business on the 5 per cent basis, the oats at 25 cents per bushel, but otherwise the prevailing prices had discouraged them from bringing the grain in.

During the period they had prepared and passed upon the by-laws of the company, which were now ready and available for distribution. No money had yet been paid on the elevator. The papers which would complete the purchase had been received, and had been handed to Greene & Payne for their counsel on the matter.

It was recognized by the directors that if the company was to be of real service to the farmers they would have to come forward with their list of products for sale. No obligation whatever attached to this. A. P. C. or "phone to the Secretary. If they sold elsewhere, to keep his accounts accurate would be all that would be required.

Why should not every farmer who has hay or hogs or grain to sell, not at least let the company know of it. When answering enquiries, making up cars, and when quoting, the office work would be greatly facilitated if the Secretary but knew what was in the country for disposal. If you have hay or hogs for shipment, let him know it. If you are specializing in seed grain, let the Farmers Co-Operative, Limited, have samples and prices.

The directors believe that they can perform a real service for the farmers in finding new markets and in maintaining those they have. They had been able during the period to pay the top price for hogs and the going price for all the produce handled. Practically all of the hogs had been bought on the three per cent deduction, and 13 per cent was now being returned in stock to the patrons. Four of them, Messrs. R. Leithhead, R. Gunnison, Elias Vincent and Chris. White had earned for themselves a paid up ten dollar share in the company, and Mr. Geo. Parker Penhold, had earned in the same way two shares of the value of twenty dollars.

If the company has the reasonable support of the farmers in the future that stock was as good as cash, and in proportion as the company succeeded, so that stock would rise in value.

The step of allocating the profits in stock had been decided the simplest and fairest means of building up the company, and according to its strength so it can serve you. While its credit was good, that credit had to be paid for, just as the individual farmer had to pay for his credit at the local bank, and a working fund, the nucleus of which had now been started, was the first step towards the company's financial standing. The simple expedient of becoming a subscriber to the company's share list and making payment of the ten per cent, call ensured to the patrons all there was in the produce, less the expense of handling it.

While the semi-annual meeting for the period to the 31st May had disappeared of the business done up till

Indignant Citizen of Rocky Mountain House Writes

Exposes Tactics of Blind Guide

Mr. Editor—Having read your article about the Rocky Mountain House "Guide" in your last issue, in which you termed it as "The Blind Guide," I take the liberty of asking for some little space in your paper.

I think you nicknamed "The Guide" very nicely. Mr. Skinner, the editor, indeed, very blind to the needs of the settlement. He shouts that he is going to set the pace, why don't he start? The late editor, Mr. Thomson, of the Echo, never shouted what he would do, but set to work and pushed. Why don't Mr. Skinner? The trouble with Mr. Skinner is that he has forgot everything except the moral question. He has even forgot to get out two issues of the paper in two months. He is always going to better the town. Why don't he do it? Now I am where I want to begin. Two years ago The Echo fought for the local improvement district, and a petition was got out, to which every settler put his name, while the one business house here, Fraser & Gaetz, refused to sign. They claimed a road wasn't needed, between here and Leslieville. But now Fraser & Gaetz own an auto and they are shouting for a road to Leslieville, and Skinner beats the tin drum. This road to Leslieville is still wanted, but nearly so much needed as two years ago, as the railway is now here. Fraser & Gaetz will say they paid heavy to bring freight over that road, but who indirectly paid that freight? The settler, so what do they care. Of course, the petition which was sent in two years ago was turned down by the Sifton government. They didn't even deem it worth while to say whether they received it or not, and it is to be hoped that Mr. Gaetz can now persuade them to build this road for autos; perhaps he may allow a settler to use it once in a while.

And we never see anything in the Guide about a bridge across the Clearwater. Over seventy-five families are across that river and they would like to trade at Rocky Mountain House, but for the want of a bridge these seventy-five families have to shop at Innisfail, a distance of from fifty to seventy miles further for them to go than to Rocky Mountain House, as the only bridge across the Clearwater is at Dover Court. Would not a bridge across the Clearwater and the trade of these seventy-five families, or more, help the town? Yes, but never a word from Skinner. Last fall these settlers decided to build a bridge for themselves, when H. L. Gaetz stepped in and was going to get them help from Sifton. Now it is too late for them to build the bridge, and the pocketbook full of money Gaetz was going to get from his nice friend Arthur Sifton hasn't showed up. Many more horses will be lost by venturesome settlers who will try to get into town by fording the river, but then the loss of these horses will help the news columns of the Blind Guide, but the settler will state the loss, and Sifton, who is still in power will still say there is no use in helping the settler. There is money needed for other roads leading into Rocky Mountain House, but you wouldn't think so to read "The Guide"—I mean "The Blind Guide" which is working at the wrong end. I have always told you that if you do nothing but help the town, that neither town nor surrounding country amount to much, but help the country, and the country will help the town, but don't believe that Skinner believes in either. He believes, help the Guide, which is Mr. Skinner, and the balance can go to Hades. There are several other matters I would like to make known, but space will not allow. Perhaps I may pen a few words in a week or so if this escapade of the V.P.R. Unit, in closing, I wish to say that this settlement looks for no help from Mr. Welliver should he be elected, as he will only be one of Sifton's machines that don't believe in putting money where it is most needed—mudholes. But we have great respect for Michener, the man who tries to do the square thing by the settler.

Yours Truly,
A PIONEER SETTLER.
Rocky Mountain House, Alta.

that time, and the statement of income and expenditure herewith referred to from that date to the 31st December, 1912, a statement of the produce handled had been made, as the more interesting covering the whole year from the 1st of January to the 31st December, 1912, the patrons looked forward to an even better business this year than last, and so that they may serve you, let them know how they may.

New Cement Industry

Parkvale has been the scene of quiet preparations for a very useful industry for the town of Red Deer. Builders and contractors will be able to get any article they need in the cement line made in town. Messrs. Comis and Nachtmann are practical men in this line which is amply proved by the samples they have had made by themselves, and which include cement blocks, window sills, roofing, tiles, door steps, tomb stones, etc. They have sample cement blocks for veneering, cement interlocking tile, and a special tile made of asbestos and absolutely fire proof. At present the gravel is screened at the pits about two miles from town and hauled to Parkvale, and there moulded into the different samples, but it is their intention to do the work in the summer of this year, and then the stock, the products in town, where they will be more easily seen. They also make a flooring of Tarrazzo, which is very nice, and mosaic floors. These men were offered high wages to work at Medicine Hat, but preferred to locate in Red Deer and try business on their own account.

The Saskatchewan Bridge

The C.P.R. will start building the steel work on concrete piers of the bridge crossing the Saskatchewan at Rocky Mountain House on March 1st. The C.N.R. are busy building the connecting piece of grade between the two cities, and the C.P.R. and both lines will use the bridge crossing the Saskatchewan. The steel will be taken over the Brazeau C.N.R. line for the bridge.

Fire in North Red Deer

A fire broke out in the house owned by N. White in North Red Deer, about 11 o'clock, and although the Red Deer Brigade rendered all assistance possible, they were unable to save the building, which was completely destroyed, along with most of the furniture, clothing, etc., owned by Mr. Frost, who occupied the house. The damage would be about $1,000.

Edwell Union U.F.A., No. 53

An enthusiastic meeting of this Local Union was held on the 17th February last in the schoolhouse, about 25 members were present.

A letter was received from the Executive stating that Pine Lake desired to organize, and after the matter had been discussed, the following members were appointed a committee to organize this local union: T. J. Walton President, F. Powell Secretary, F. Ellis, H. Crocker, S. Wyndham and F. Graham.

Four new members were nominated, bringing the total of paid up members to 36.
Quotations were read on a card of flour, and the Secretary was instructed to ascertain who would take flour (Robin Hood), to make up the quantity, also farina, bran, shorts, etc. The Secretary was also instructed to take further orders for another carload of coal, the last carload having been very favorably reported upon.

Members can obtain formalin from the Edwell store as he will send them a box of formalin, and the Secretary will be glad to hear from anyone having same for sale.

R. Gunnison reported having 3 horses about 1100 lbs., about 1100, 2 broken and matched, coming 1 and 5, and one 3-year-old, halter broken. F. Powell reported having pure bred Leghorn cockerels for sale, both rose comb and single comb.

The meeting then adjourned to Monday, March 3rd, at 7.30 p.m., when all members are requested to attend. Each member is requested to try and bring in a new member so that this union may prove to be the strongest around.

Put this question to yourself. If that home in North Red Deer, which was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning, had been your home, would you have suffered a total loss? Or in other words, would you have had insurance? If not, call and attend to the matter at once.—J. Edw. Welton, Room 1, News Block.

A New and Exciting Love Story for Young and Old.

ham offer to lead Cynthia to Garlick's birthday. Not forty-eight hours, but long years, as measured by the seeming trivialities that go to make up existence, spanned the interval between Bristol and Hereford. They chafed against the bonds of steel that yet united them; they resented the silent edict that aimed at parting them; by a hundred little artifices each made clear to the other that the coming separation was distasteful, while the eager interest in the commonplace supplied sure index of their embarrassment. And so, almost as a duty, the West Front, the North Porch, the Close, the Green, the Wyke Bridge, were duly snapped and carried in a little book that Cynthia carried.

Once, while she was making a note, Medeham held the camera, and happened to watch her as she wrote. At the top of a page he saw "Flin S. No. 5: Fitzroy poses as the first Earl of Chepstow." Cynthia's left hand held the entry just a second too late.

"I couldn't help seeing that," he said innocently. "If you will give me a print, I shall have it framed and place it among the other family portraits."

"I really meant to present you with an album, containing all the pictures which turn out well," she said.

Pitzroy poses as the first Earl of Shepstow

"You have not changed your mind, I hope?"

"No, but there will be so few. I was rather busy during the first two days."

"You can trust me to fill in the gaps with exceeding accuracy."

"Oh, don't let us talk as if we would never meet again. The world is small to motorists."

"I had the exact contrary in mind," he said quickly. "If we parted today, and did not meet for twenty years, each of us might well be doubtful as to what did or did not happen last Friday or Saturday. But association strengthens and confirms such recollections. I often think that memories held in common are the most solid foundation of friendship."

Let me be dumb rather than so worthy of the treasure that her overflowing heart would heap on him! But it could not be. She dared not face her father, her relatives, her host of friends, and confess with proud humility that she had found her mate in some unknown Englishman, the hired driver of a motor-car. At any rate, in that moment of exultation Cynthia did not know what she might dare when put to the test. Her lips parted, her eyes glistened, and she turned aside to gaze blindly at the distant Welsh hills.

"If we don't hurry," she said with the slowness of desperation, "we shall never complete the test. Her lips parted, her eyes glistened, and she turned aside to gaze blindly at the distant Welsh hills."

gan, but Mrs. Devar discovered them from afar, and scattered a telegram. They hastened to her—Cynthia flushed at the thought that she might be recalled to London—which she would not regret, since a visit to the doctor today is better than the toothache all next week—and Medeham stole himself against imminent unmaking.

But Mrs. Devar's main business in life was self.

"I have just heard from James," she cooed. "He promised to run up to Shrewsbury today, but finds he cannot spare the time. Count Edouard told him that Mr. Vanreuen was in town, and he regrets he was unable to call before he left."

"Your father, dear."

"Left for where?"

"Mrs. Devar screwed her eyes at the pink slip."

"That is all it says. Just 'left'!"

"That doesn't sound right, anyhow," laughed Medeham.

"Oh, but this is too ridiculous!" and Cynthia's foot stamped. "I have never before known my father to leave in this Jack-in-the-box fashion."

"Mrs. Leland will clear up the whole mystery," volunteered Medeham.

"But what mystery?" cried Mrs. Devar, blinking first at one then at the other. She bent over the telegram again.

"James sent this message from the West Strand at 3.30. Perhaps he had just heard of Mr. Vanreuen's departure," she said.

Judging from Cynthia's occasional references to her father's character and associates, Medeham fancied it was much more likely that the American railway magnate had merely refused to meet Captain Devar. But therein he was mistaken.

At the very hour that the three were settling themselves in the Mercury before taking the road to Ledminster, Mr. Vanreuen, driven by a perturbed but silent Simmonds, stopped the car on the outskirts of Whit-church and asked an intelligent-looking boy if he had noticed nothing of an automobile numbered X L 4009.

"I s'pose you mean a motor-car," said the boy.

Vanreuen, a tall man, thin, close-clipped, with high cheekbones, and aging nose, a man utterly unlike his daughter save for the widespread, all-seeing eyes, smiled at the naïve correction; with that smile some enchantress's wand mirrored Cynthia in her father's face. Even Simmonds, who had seen no semblance of a smile in the features of the chilly, skeptical man by whom he was dragged out of bed at an unearthly hour in the morning at Bristol, witnessed the alchemy, and marvelled.

"Yes, sir, rather," continued the boy, brimming over with enthusiasm. "The gentleman went along the Hereford road, last yesterday morning. He came back, too, with a shuffer, and he's seen at the Symon's Hotel."

Peter Vanreuen frowned, and Cynthia vaulted to her feet by the Wall Street speculator who had "made a pyramid in Milwaukee." Whence, then, came the telephone? Of course, his alert mind bit on a missed mail as the genesis of the run to Hereford. On Saturday day, but he asked himself why he had not been told of a changed address. He could not guess that Cynthia would have mentioned the fact and she spoken to him, but in the flurry and surprise of hearing that he was not in the hotel she forgot to tell the attendant who took her message that she was at Symon's Yat and not at Hereford.

"Are you sure about the car?" he said, rendered somewhat skeptical by the boy's overblown knowledge.

"Yes, sir. Didn't me an' Dick Davies watch for it all chapel-time?"

"But why—?" for that car in particular.

"The gentleman built his tire an' we watched him mend it, an' he set us a sum, an' he promised us a job each if we did it."

"Meanwhile he went to Hereford and back?"

"I s'pose so, sir."

Peter Vanreuen's attention was held by that guinea guinea and the American, he was ever ready to absorb information, especially in matters appertaining to the automobile.

"What was the sum?" he said.

To his very keen annoyance he found that he could not make out the straight off his head. He was now a man of a field of grass, which one of them could cut in four days and the other in three. Indeed, he almost caught himself saying "three days and a half," but stopped short of that folly, and he said, "I am sure."

needed in his behalf.

But, if Simmonds, who had stood on Spion Kop, refused to be brow-beaten by a British earl, he certainly would not grovel before an American plutocrat. He had endured a good deal since five o'clock that morning. He told his tale honestly and fully;

Now, can you walk to the hotel?"

he even sympathized with a father's distress, though assured in his own mind that it was wholly unwarranted. He was genuinely sorry on hearing that Mr. Vanreuen had been searching for hours before he came to the right one. But to be treated like a serf?—no, not if Simmonds knew it!

The car stopped with a jerk. Out leaped the driver.

"Now you can walk to the hotel," he said, though he distinguished the hotel by an utterly inappropriate adjective.

The more sudden the crisis the more prepared was Vanreuen—that was his noted characteristic, whether dealing with men or money.

"What has bitten you?" he demanded calmly.

"You must find somebody else to do your detective work, that's all," came the stolid answer.

"I'm not a mule. You're makin' a 4-4 row about nothing. Viscount Medeham is a gentleman to his finger-tips, and if you were one you'd know that he wouldn't hurt a hair on Miss Vanreuen's head, or any lady's, for that matter."

"Where my daughter is concerned I am not a gentleman, or a viscount, or a person who makes 4-4 row. I am just a father—a plain, simple father—who thinks more of his girl than of any other object in this world. If I have hurt your feelings I am sorry. If I am altogether mistaken I'll apologize and pay. I'm paying now. This trip will probably cost me fifty thousand dollars that I would have scooped in two or three days. Tomorrow, your game is to attend to the business buzz part of the contract and leave the rest to me. Shove ahead, and step lively!"

To his lasting credit, Simmonds obeyed; he never raised and cleared the air; Vanreuen liked the man and now that his original estimate of his worth was justified.

At the hotel, of course, he had much more to learn than he expected. Oddly enough, the praises showered on "Pitzroy" continued him in the opinion that Cynthia was the victim of a clever knave, he he titled aristocrat more adventuresome. For the time being, he began to suspect Mrs. Devar of complicity in the plot!

He had a kind of chaotic sense must be to let his girl go boating with a chauffeur on the Wyke! And her Sunday's illness, a palpable pretence, an arranged affair to doubt, to permit more boating and dallying in this fairland of forest and river. What thanks he owed to that Frenchman, Marigny!

Indeed, it was easy to hoodwink the hardheaded man in such a case. Cynthia was the victim of a clever knave, he he titled aristocrat more adventuresome. For the time being, he began to suspect Mrs. Devar of complicity in the plot!

He had a kind of chaotic sense must be to let his girl go boating with a chauffeur on the Wyke! And her Sunday's illness, a palpable pretence, an arranged affair to doubt, to permit more boating and dallying in this fairland of forest and river. What thanks he owed to that Frenchman, Marigny!

Wish to delight his daughter by an unexpected participation in her holiday. No secret had been made as to the Mercury's halting-place that day. Cynthia herself had written the address in the hotel register, adding a request that letters, if any, were to be forwarded to Windermere.

By chance, the smiling landlady's curiosity as to "Pitzroy" raised a new specter.

"He must be a gentleman," she said, "because he belongs to the Thames Rowing Club; he also spoke and acted like one. Why did he employ an assistant chauffeur? That is most unusual."

Common Sense Talk

On Mixed Farming

Right now, before he decides upon what crops he will put in this spring, is the time for the Alberta farmer to figure on what extent he will go into livestock feeding during the winter of 1911-12. Last year the output of wheat from the province showed a decrease, while oats production took a decided leap. This encouraging sign should be even more evident during the coming season. Western Canada foremost livestock expert states that as an all round feed oats cannot be beaten, and nowhere are better crops grown than in Alberta. Every Alberta farmer should consider oats his leading crop, but he should not be satisfied with simply raising the crop; he should cut some green for fodder and utilize the balance of his crop for chop and feed every ounce of it right on his place.

The Alberta farmer should get no idea that livestock feeding operations require elaborate or expensive plants. There is not a single district in the province where stock farmers are wintered out-of-doors, in fact, those who have fed both inside and outside say that the animals do much better. In addition to this, the sheep will repay those fattening them during the winter, even if the feeding stock has to be purchased. Agriculturists here may get many profitable lessons by studying the experiences of husbandmen in the older districts; our soil is probably the most fertile in the world, but there is no use trying to fool ourselves in thinking that it will stand continuous cropping to grain and give paying crops forever without fertilization. In addition to this is the fact that mixed farming pays a continuous income; those who have practised it in Alberta have found the results.

For instance, a farmer writing to the Canadian Pacific Railway, the other day, in the course of his letter said, "A mixed farmer always has something to sell if it is only a pig or some butter. It is surprising how handy the price of a good hog comes in when you go to pay your store bill and, again, it is sometimes a $500 team of horses that makes the mixed farmer smile, because generally it is the straight grain grower who is the buyer." The same day came a letter to the same company from a farmer in Iowa, who has bought a section here and is coming up in the spring. He said, in part, "I want you to have six or eight high grade dairy cows and some brood sows ready to turn over to me when I arrive. I don't want to have to wait until I get a crop before my land starts to make money for me; I'm going to start right in making money from day 1 at it." He is an experienced farmer and knows the right way to conduct his business.

Every Alberta farmer should make up his mind that this year he is going to raise some stock; get some brood sows, dairy cows, feeder cattle or sheep, and start in right now to figure on raising the feed for them. Those in the districts where it has proven successful should certainly start a plot of alfalfa; those to the north can raise the native hay for part of the ration. Oats and barley, the former either green or ripe, and the latter for chop, give big crops in all parts of the province. When Alberta farmers make up their minds to ship nothing from their farms except their wheat, and feed everything else, they will be in a position to laugh at frost or anything else that threatens the crops. Any farmer who wishes advice regarding the feeding or breeding of live stock, may receive same free of any charge by applying to the Department of Natural Resources, Canadian Pacific Railway, Calgary, Alberta.

Pitcox News

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Plowman returned from their California trip last week. They could get nothing but frozen goods there, so they think they can do better, than that at Pitcox. Alberta for them.

MacDonnell Bros. have just unloaded a car of hardware and are expecting another in a few days. Who says Pitcox isn't on the map? You should see the store and blacksmith shop these days.

Mr. H. H. H. of here has gone on a trip to Washington.

The dance at the cheese factory, got up by E. C. Hall, who is returning to England, where he has a good position offered him, was a huge success. Ed. Gove, of Rocky Mountain House, drove S. Sheppard and Miss Cochrane down. The Leslieville boys were here in force.

What's the matter with the young ladies up there? The Pitcox girls are fetching, according to the lunk who came. Bring the girls along next time, lads, variety is charming.

Mr. Nordbrook, from Rocky Mountain House, was a visitor here last week.

Miss Crandlemore, of B.C., has taken up her duties at Daisy Hook School. She is staying with Mr. Whittle, the Secretary-Treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Huskins took a trip in the cutter to Rocky Mountain House and beyond last Friday, returning Sunday. They enjoyed the drive, and the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Killick and also of Mr. and Mrs. Olsen on the return journey.

There will no doubt be a provincial election soon, and the boys will know how to deal with the Sifton government when the time comes. We have had enough of misrule and bad management, and a change is necessary. Mr. E. Michener for Premier of Alberta is the cry in Red Deer. Make it so here—carry it along—and then we shall get some good roads, instead of demonstration farms and mudholes.

New Planing Mill

Messrs. Baird & McKenzie, the enterprising contractors of Red Deer, have started the ball rolling this year by the construction of a new factory and planing mill, adjoining the Great West Lumber Company's mill over the river. The new building is 40 x 80, 15 feet high, containing a sub-basement for the line shaft, and the working floor. The main floor is of maple wood. The power will be supplied from the steam plant of the lumber mill, which will be replaced in time by the Lumber Co. with electric power. The machinery is expected here by April, and when it is installed Baird & McKenzie will have one of the most up-to-date planing establishments in the country.

Young Red Deer

Theatrical Club

At a meeting of the Britannia's Heroes Company, held in the Assembly hall of the Public School, much regret was expressed that the company would break up. After some discussion it was decided to form a theatrical club, to be known as "The Young Red Deer Theatrical Club," which will be a social and theatrical organization, putting on a number of entertainments of different kinds during the year, the proceeds of which will go to local charities. The Club was organized with a membership of about 25, the following officers being elected: President, Hon. Pres. R. B. Welliver. Hon. Vice-Pres.—P. Pidgeon. President and Manager—G. B. Samuel. Secretary—E. E. Pidgeon. Treasurer—E. S. George. Advertising Agent—A. Smith. Executive Committee—Mrs. G. B. Samuel, Miss A. Patterson, Miss N. Day, C. Hamilton, C. Smith and G. R. Kieville.

A large number of applications for membership have already been received, and anyone wishing to join may obtain full particulars from the Secretary.

Every applicant will be considered by the executive. The Club will hold a social evening every two weeks, which the executive hope to make both pleasant and profitable.

The Club will doubtless prove a very profitable and popular organization, for, apart from splendid educational advantages to be had from amateur theatricals, the Club will provide pleasing entertainments, both for its own members and for the citizens of the town.

The first concert will be held tonight in the Orange Hall.

Glowing Tribute Paid by House to Dead Explorers

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—When the house met today occasion was taken to express the practical sympathy of the Canadian people with the families of Captain Scott and his companions in the recent terrible Antarctic tragedy.

The subject was introduced by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux. The world, he said, had been moved to its depths by news of the tragedy in the unexplored solitudes of the south. The dauntless explorers had lost their lives but the world honored them as brave men and brave Britishers who had found a glorious death.

"The event has filled the hearts of everyone with grief and pride," he said. "With grief because of the sacrifice of their lives, with pride because their dearly bought conquests tribute to the indomitable characteristics of the race; to their intrepidity; the resolution and the capacity for endurance of the British people at large."

The expedition of Captain Scott, as the expedition of Franklin, was intended to be of service to humanity and I have no doubt that the records which served Scott as a pillow, will hereafter be of scientific interest to the world.

—A SPANISH OLD MOUNT.

(Edmonton Journal).

Mr. John A. Turner, the well-known horseman, has consented to take the field as the Liberal candidate in Okeoke against Mr. Headley. It is surprising that so good a judge of horse flesh would consent to appear on such a mount as the Sifton government can furnish him with for the impending race.

INVITATION ACCEPTED.

The Rev. Dr. Wilson, of Carstairs, has accepted (subject to the Stationing Committee's action) the unanimous invitation of the Quarterly Official Board to succeed Mr. Pearson as pastor of the Methodist church at Red Deer, too.

One of the brainy Nova Scotians who have come west, and the work of himself and Mrs. Wilson is very highly spoken of.

Mr. Pelletier's Announcement

The announcement by Hon. L. P.
Pelletier, Postmaster-General, in the House of Commons, that Canada is to have a system of parcel post, is one of the most important declarations of policy made in many years. Parcel post benefits have already been conferred upon the people of many other countries, and an experiment is being made in the United States.

STUDYING RESULTS.

Mr. Pelletier's statement, shows that he is taking up the question from a sane businesslike standpoint and will acquaint himself with the results of systems already established before finally determining upon the system to be adopted in this country. His object is to work out a system by which not only those districts now served by the express companies, but other districts as well, will be served by the parcel post.

It will mean that wherever there is a post office some of the advantages of the parcel post will be felt, although it is not thought feasible to have each post office the centre of a parcel post zone as in the United States. Nor is it likely that the scheme can be worked out on a flat rate basis.

BUSINESS BASIS.

The intention of the Postmaster-General is to work out a plan by which a fair share of the parcel carrying business of the country will be done through the post office.
This will probably be brought about by some arrangement with the railways so that all the paying business will be left to the express companies. Mr. Pelletier will have his plans completed, before he makes his final announcement.

Billion Dollar Trade Year for Canada

How Canada is Prospering

Figures for the last month of the calendar year justify the prediction by the Minister of Finance that this is to be a billion dollar year in the trade of Canada. The December figures complete the returns for the ninth month period of the fiscal year. The aggregate trade of the last month reached the amount of $94,845,000,
as against $76,904,000 in December, 1911. The increase thus is over 22
per cent.

TWENTY-FOUR PER CENT.

During the nine months ending December 31 last the aggregate trade was $808,440,000. The trade during the corresponding period of 1911 was $647,519,000, the increase thus being
24 per cent.

INCREASE BOTH WAYS.

Imports entered for consumption last December were $51,142,000, as against $43,424,000 in December, 1911. The increase thus is 17 1/2 per cent. The imports for the nine months were $496,692,000, as against $382,541,000 in the corresponding period of 1911, the increase being 30
per cent.

Exports during December last were $38,698,000, an increase of 25 per cent. over the $30,889,000 of December, 1911. For the nine months ending December 31, 1911, the exports of domestic produce were $278,652,- 000, and of foreign produce $28,873,- 000. The corresponding figures for the preceding year were $226,895,000

and $17,853,000 respectively, so that here again there has been an increase of over 22 per cent.

Dick Bleay Sends a Letter

18th February, 1913.
Editor of News.
Dear Sir,—Will you please tell the people of Everts and surrounding district that I am truly thankful for the kind and liberal support they have given me in the past, in more ways than one, and especially at public sales. That I have not renewed my lease for 1913, neither do I intend to do so, as I find my time fully occupied attending to loans, valuing, etc., and in reply to a question put by two of my clients, as to who I could recommend, can only say that that is something which I would rather abstain from. However, I know them all, and have at various times been present at their sales, and, believe me, I have no choice; they all hang on, bulldog like, with the hope of getting another bite—I mean bid—
the highest bidder is what they are all after, and that is, as I understand it, auction in the true sense of the word; and only one, only one, as Anthony said at Caesar's funeral, two thousand years ago, or thereabouts,
"So, are they all, all honorable men."

Will you please tell them, too, that anyone wishing to borrow money can do so by writing me, R.R. No. 1, Red Deer, give their location,
amount required, and I will come right out. They have no need to go to Red Deer; no need to leave the farm. Strictly confidential. Low rates, least expense and no delay.
I thank you.
DICK BLEAY.

Marrianne

The following was unavoidably crowded out of last week's issue.

The people of Marrianne have been making record time during the present winter in the matter of enjoying themselves. Music, singing, games and dancing, and feasting, have been the order of the day and everybody seems the happier and brighter for it all. Monday, February 3rd, witnessed the latest, but not the last we hope, of these social functions, when a large and jolly crowd assembled, in spite of the severe weather at Yorkville, where Mrs. Yorke and friends had arranged a musical evening of such scale and character that interest did not flag
when, at the end of about eight hours, the assembly broke up at six o'clock on Tuesday morning as "the first grey streaks of early dawn" were hastening on their way to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne".

Sores From Elbows

To the Fingers

Zam-Buk Worked a Miracle of Healing.

Reverend Gentleman Fully Corroborates.

Miss Kate L. Dooliver, of Caledonia, Queens' Co., N.S., says: "I must add my testimony to the value of Zam-Buk. Ulcers and sores broke out on my arm, and although I tried to heal them by using various preparations, nothing seemed to do me any good. The sores spread until from fingers to elbow was one mass of ulceration.

"I had five different doctors, and faithfully carried out their instructions.
I drank pint after pint of blood medicines, tried salve after salve, and lotion after lotion; but it was of no avail.

"My father then took me thirty miles to see a well-known doctor.
He photographed the arm and hand.
This photograph was sent to a New York hospital to the specialist; but they sent word they could do nothing further for me, and I was in despair.

"One day a friend asked me if I had tried Zam-Buk. I said I had not, but I got a box right away. That first box did me more good than all the medicine I had tried up to that time. So I continued with the treatment. Every box healed the sores more and more until, to make a long story short, Zam-Buk healed
all the sores completely. Everybody in this place knows of my case, and that it is Zam-Buk alone which cured me."

Minister corroborates.—The Rev.
W. H. M. Parker, of Caledonia, Miss Dooliver's minister, writes: "This is to certify that the testimonial of Miss Dooliver is correct as far as I am able to judge. I have known her for a year and a half, and her cure effected by Zam-Buk is remarkable."

Whenever there is ulceration, blood, poison, sores, cold-cracks, abscesses, cuts, burns, bruises or any skin injury or disease, there Zam-Buk should be applied. It is also a sure cure for piles. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. per box, or post
free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse cheap and harmful imitations and substitutes.

LADY CURLERS.

The two lady rinks skipped by Messrs. Lindsay and Gillespie played a single table on Thursday evening last. The play was very close. If Mr. Gillespie's last rock had reached the ring, he would have tied his opponent, but he said he was hoodwinked by the eagle eye of Dr. Gray just as he was about to deliver the shot, so he put up the supper. The rinks were: Mrs. Plaxton, Mrs. MacInnes, Mrs. Lindsay, Mr. Gillespie, skip. Mrs. L. M. Gaetz, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. J. C. Moore, Mrs. Lindsay skip.

Mrs. Hart and daughter were thanked for their kind hospitality. Scotty was one of the principal features. Another outing tomorrow night.

BRICK MANUFACTURERS ORGANIZE

At a convention in Calgary, with delegates from all parts of Alberta, the Alberta Clay Products Manufacturing Association was formed. W. J. Tremblay, of Calgary, was elected the first President, and Mark Drum of Calgary, Sec'y-Treasurer. Electors were present from many other parts of Canada and the U.S.A. The business of most importance to the users of brick was the decision on a standard size, which is for common brick 2 1/8 by 8 1/2 inches, and for pressed face brick 2 3/8 by 8 1/2 inches. It was also pointed out that the standard set by the association automatically became the lawful size of brick for the province, and other sizes can be refused at the building unless special arrangements are made.
